Get up close and personal with your idols Not so long ago, seeing your favorite band, actor or athlete live in person was a truly memorable experience. However, with the rise in popularity of live streaming applications like Vine and Snapchat, it is now possible to feel as if you are right in front of them, without the need to be at a location that their music festival or event is held at. Tweetnoiz is a Twitter client for Windows PCs that enables you to easily perform tweets, direct messages, check your favorite applications and more from the same place where you have the Tweet composer. Installer, requirements, and interface The setup process is simple and requires no third-party software to work, since it installs via an executable package. It does not place an excessive amount of memory or CPU usage, just like what you get from a browser that also enables you to perform various functions from Twitter, and can even keep track of your following levels. Within the first screen of the tool, you can change the status bar text, so you can easily spot all the applications you work with, and find the various features you enjoy the most. You can also change the color of it, depending on your preference. For instance, you can select 'black', 'white', 'red', or 'green', to help identify them from one another. Evaluation and conclusion Tweetnoiz is a lightweight and user-friendly application, having a budget price, that is just what you need to perform all your favorite Twitter functions from the same location where you store the Tweet composer. It is highly recommended to someone who likes to express their opinion and is able to tweet from the same computer that contains the Tweeter.
