The new cultivar originated in a controlled breeding program in Elburn, Ill. during November 2008. The objective of the breeding program was the development of Spathiphyllum cultivars with unique foliage coloration and mounding growth habit. The new cultivar is the result of cross-pollination. The female (seed) parent of the new cultivar is 'Gardenburg', U.S. Plant Pat. No. 17,593, characterized by its large dark green, shiny leaves and upright, mounded-trailing growth habit. The male (p

Nevertheless, there are several clinical trials ongoing in melanoma that use the whole tumor lysate approach to prime the immune system against cancer antigens that are present in the tumor. Here, we describe the presentation of a phase 1/2a study from our institution that shows that lysate-based vaccines are safe and able to induce specific immunity. Informed consent for this study was obtained from all patients. This is a phase 1/2a trial that was approved by the IRB of our institution (trial registry NCT02000309). All eligible patients underwent surgery of primary melanoma stage I-III (primary melanoma and clinically detectable lymph node metastasis). However, patients with in-transit lesions were excluded. At day 0, patients received at least 2 intradermal vaccinations of autologous tumor lysate-based vaccines from their resected melanoma, each 4 weeks apart. Vaccination was followed by a vaccine-associated adjuvant therapy that consisted in combination ipil 3e33713323
