No more no-passing zones in Houston, where the city is temporarily closing down two miles of its major freeway due to a swarm of dangerous and large bees. Despite being barred from the roadway, commuters still have a hard time getting around Houston because of the number of cars in the city. But to some Texans, it's just an inconvenience. Authorities said more than 1,000 bees were blocking a major freeway in Houston, and they were being chased by another 2,000. Get Breaking News Delivered to Your Inbox CBS Houston affiliate KHOU reports that the bee swarm was at the intersection of Interstate 45 and Eastern Parkway near downtown Houston. "They're preventing people from getting to and from work," Harris County Beekeeper Association spokeswoman Sharon Stielow
